Teaching

Teaching experience includes responsibilities ranging from module leader, course leader and programme leader across the range of student experience from first to honours years and masters courses. Subjects have included anatomy and physiology, pharmacology, research methods, statistics, biology of ageing, dementia, and care of older people. Teaching methods increasingly include blended learning and asynchronous online teaching.

Professional and external standing

Editor Nursing Open: I have held this position at Wiley since 2014.

Editor in Chief Journal of Advanced Nursing: I have held this position at Wiley since 2012.

Fellow of the Royal College of Nursing (2009): this is the highest award that the Royal College of Nursing of the United Kingdom can award; mine was in recognition of research into the assessment of feeding difficulty in older people with dementia and advocacy of university level education for nursing.

Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians in Edinburgh: I have been a non-physician fellow since 2014.

Editor in Chief Journal of Clinical Nursing: I held this position at Wiley-Blackwell between 2008-2011 having been Editor since 2003. Since 2003, the journal moved from being relatively obscure to being the leading UK nursing journal and 5th in the world (according to Thompson ISI) of academic nursing journals in 2007. It was the first UK nursing journal to break an impact factor of 1 and remains in the top 20 in the world. Production increased in this period from 6 to 24 issues annually and the journal is the largest academic nursing journal in the world.

Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing (2007): I am the first UK/European nurse to be elected a Fellow and remain only one of nine non-USA citizens elected to date.

Fellow of the Faculty of Nursing & Midwifery of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland (ad eundem): this award, equivalent to a fellowship by study, was awarded on the basis of my CV.

Member 2008 RAE sub-panel for Nursing & Midwifery: being appointed to this position is self-explanatory in terms of prestige and influence in UK academic nursing.

Member 2014 REF sub-panel for Allied Health Professions, Dentistry, Nursing and Pharmacy: ditto.

Member (2010-) International Scientific Committee, Centre of Excellence for Nursing Scholarship, Nursing Board of Rome, Italy.

Member (2013-) Ethical Committee of the Centre of Excellence for Nursing Scholarship, Nursing Board of Rome, Italy.

Member (2013-) 2 Medical Brigade Territorial Army Nursing Research Professoriate.

Member (2010) of population health, epidemiology and health services grant selection committee, Health Research Board, Ireland

Member (2013-) Humanities and social science panel, Research Grants Council, Hong Kong SAR, China

Chair The Lancet Commission on UK Nursing (2013-2015)
